Fulford Harbor Newsy Items

(Review Correspondent.)
FULFORD HARBOR, Nov. 6.—Last Tuesday evening the South Salt Spring Women's Institute gave a very successful dance in the hall here. The music was supplied by the South Salt Spring orchestra. There was an excellent crowd in attendance and everyone enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Eaton gave a card party at their home on Friday evening. About 50 people were present and had a very enjoyable time playing progressive 500. Mrs. P. C. Moller won the ladies' prize, and Mrs. J. Horel the ladies' consolation prize. The gentlemen's first prize went to Mr. W. Hamilton, Jr. and the consolation to Mr. J. Peters. Delightful refreshments were served after the tournament was over.

FULFORD HARBOR, Oct. 28.

The opening match of the Islands Football League was played here today, when the Gabriola eleven met the Fulford Harbor team. The game was watched with much interest by the spectators for, while the local boys kept the ball well in their opponents' territory, yet the Gabriola players succeeded in making quite a number of sallies towards the Fulford goal and right up till the whistle blew the game might have gone either way. The local boys have several new players with them and are not yet playing the brand of ball that won them the cup last season, but there will probably be great improvement by the end of the contest. The Gabriola eleven showed considerable knowledge of the game and played excellent football throughout, but the South Salt Spring aggregation showed too much speed for them, and but for indifferent shooting and good work by the Gabriola goalie, a much higher score would have been run up.

The first goal was scored by the local team well on in the first half when the Gabriola goalie let the ball through his hands after a corner kick. The second half soon saw another tally added to the first by Billy Hamilton. The next was scored by Gabriola, whereupon both teams doubled their efforts, but as the only other goal scored by Fulford was ruled offside by the referee the score remained 2-1 in favor of the home team when the whistle blew for time.

The cup games are to be played under the eye of registered referees this year, and Mr. A. Stokes, of Victoria, handled the whistle for the occasion.

The next game of the series will be between Ganges and Gabriola at Gabriola next Saturday, following which Fulford enters the contest again at Ganges on Thursday, Nov. 9. After the match refreshments were served to the teams in the hall.

OFF THE HOOK

When your telephone is left accidentally off the hook, it registers the same as a call at Central. If the operator gets no response to her "Number, please," the number is handed over to the repairing forces as being out of order. All this involves tests, reports and time. In the meantime, no one gets you on your telephone.

"Off the hook" is a very common cause of interruption to telephone service. By the exercise of care in this connection you will protect your service and avoid inconvenience to yourself and others.

The Saanich Athletic Association staged a good game of basketball on Saturday night, when the senior team played a team from the Colonist staff. The play was lively from the start and at the end of the first period Saanichton was in the lead.

Despite good work by the visiting team the home boys retained the advantage and at the close of the game the score stood at 24-19 in favor of Saanichton. Following is the lineup of the Saanichton team: B. Buckle, A. Buckle, J. Lannon, M. Lannon and W. McNally. A large crowd of interested spectators was on hand to encourage the players.

At the end of the basketball game a number of the guests engaged in a game of military 500, and this pastime occupied the attention of all until supper was served. Ten tables were occupied, and the winners of first prizes, Table No. 9, were N. Grice, P. Turgoose, C. Goslin and A. Hydes. Table No. 5, S. Sluggett, R. Michell, W. McNally and E. Buckle, were awarded consolation prizes. Another card party will be held on Nov. 18.

INVESTORS SHOULD BEWARE OF PAPER

The investing public has recently been invited ask for sample copies of a new paper called the "Canadian Investors' Review." The "first" issue is called a special mining number. It has no volume or number, and there is no definite indication that there will ever be another issue. It is filled with a collection of mining "news" that has evidently been compiled from newspaper clippings of recent weeks. It carries the advertising of one proposition only—Gold Dome—and it is significant that throughout the reading matter there are frequent references to this mine which, as pointed out in last week's issue of The Financial Post, cannot even be incorporated under that name in Ontario.

Investors are invited to ask the publishers of this sheet for information how to invest their money. Apart from the fact that we believe that they will be favorably advised regarding Gold Dome what assurance have they that the advice received will be reliable or that the people giving it are responsible.

The Financial Post can see good rather than harm from additional responsible publications to educate the public regarding investments but we believe that the public should be warned against what on the face of it looks like a "sucker" game.—Financial Post.

M. POINCARÉ'S NOTE

The Third Assembly of The League of Nations met at Geneva at the beginning of September, and Lord Robert Cecil's proposals for disarmament, a sort of international military police, and the settlement of the reparations problem have been the outstanding subjects of discussion. On the eve of the session M. Poincaré launched what purported to be a reply to the Balfour note on allied debt. The tone he adopted must make many despair of ever bringing the politician to a frame of mind which would give the ideals of the League a sporting chance. He made a quite invidious comparison between Great Britain and the United States in the war, and suggested that the lending country, which is, of course, Great Britain, made French borrowings necessary because its industries and effectives were inadequate. In M. Poincaré's view France owes Great Britain nothing because all indebtedness was incurred in the common cause, and in any case he suggests that Great Britain overcharged for services rendered. It is difficult to believe that such a document conveys the genuine opinion of France. If the Balfour note was injudicious, the Poincaré reply is a blunder. Even his own compatriots describe it as the work of "a busybody lawyer bent on exasperating his adversary."—United Empire.

RETAIN PRICES FOR SEPTEMBER.

In retail prices, says the Labor Gazette, the average cost of a weekly family budget of twenty-nine staple foods in some sixty cities was $10.28 at the beginning of September as compared with $10.41 for August; $11.82 for September, 1921; $15.95 for September, 1920; $11.65 for September, 1917; and $7.83 for September, 1914. The total for food, fuel and rent averaged $20.90 for September, as compared with $20.88 for August; $22.37 for September, 1921; $26.38 for September, 1921; $26.38 for September, 1920; $18.75 for September, 1917, and $14.33 for September, 1914. The only marked change in foods was a seasonal decline in potatoes, though meats, bread and flour were also lower. Eggs, butter, cheese, evaporated apples, prunes and sugar were slightly higher. Quotations on cod were considerably higher in some cities, while in many others it was reported that none was for sale. Wood was also higher. Rent was practically unchanged.

THE AGE OF MAN

Some men set a certain date to start being "old." They pick out a certain birthday—say 40th or 50th—and decide to settle down.

They try to gobble up all the pleasure that can be found in the years preceding the date set, and surprise enough when the time comes they are "old."

Give us the man who resolves to be middle-aged until he reaches the hundred mark. What if he does fail? He'll have oodles of fun in imagining it. He'll get out of doors and play golf or pitch horseshoes or work in his garden and put his fingers to his nose and wiggle them at old Father Time.

There's no such thing as old age—unless you look for it.—Exchange.

THE EMPIRE'S GREATEST PROBLEM.

Sir Campbell Stuart has been visiting the great prairie provinces, "the New Canada," which has developed since he was a boy. If the interval is not a big one, the changes he found were many and great. The consciousness of nationhood is apparent, but he warns Canada that nationhood brings responsibilities. He thinks Canada should appoint a Minister to Washington, where her interests are enormous, but he would confine his duties to Canada and not overweight him by concern in matters which properly belong to the British Ambassador. "What Canada needs more than anything else is population," writes Sir Campbell Stuart. "She needs a strong immigration policy, together with the widest possible advertisement of what she has to offer. Her empty spaces are calling for settlers." The opportunity for filling them is surely now. Canon Heeney, "a Canadian, and for twelve years rector of one of the leading churches in Winnipeg," is of opinion that "the Canadian Government has at present a sterile policy on migration, and England is dead to the imperative present opportunity in her nearest Dominion." This criticism supports Mr. Christopher Turner's statement that Dominion governments are yet "far from realizing that migration and settlement is the greatest problem with which the Empire is faced." What Canon Heeney does not tell us is how the Imperial Government can seize an "opportunity" in Canada whilst the Canadian policy is one of sharp restriction in regard to immigration. Perhaps Canada's bumper harvest may induce a more liberal attitude in the near future. Mr. F. C. Wade has returned from a visit to British Columbia more than ever convinced of the paramount necessity of an immediate redistribution of population throughout the Empire, and the Conference at Toronto called by Mr. Doherty has declared in favor of "a sane, aggressive immigration policy." Canon Heeney and others will be glad to learn from Mr. Wade that "there are signs on all hands that Canada is awaking" to the need.—United Empire.

MUSINGS OF A COUNTRY MERCHANT.

The following quotation portrays conditions in some localities. We trust this is not a local experience:

"Yes," remarked a country merchant, "I certainly have a snap. Wholesale houses send me duns every month and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to a farmer he comes swearing mad and quits trading at my store. While I am hard up for money, many of those who are owing me are sending money in advance to mail order houses. If I contribute money for any cause people say I am bidding for trade. If I don't they say I am a hog. Every day I am expected to dig up for everything that comes along: from a raffle ticket to a church fund, by people who claim I ought to do this, because they do part of their trading here, but the mail order houses neither buy tickets nor help the church fund, and yet they get the cash in advance business. If I sell a pair of pants I must treat the family to candy and cigars, and if I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay, hang on to their money, while I pay 10 per cent at the bank to get ready cash. I have a big business during hard times and poor crops, from people who are willing to trade with me provided I can duplicate catalogue prices and wait until harvest for my money. My scales weigh too much when I sell sugar, and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief, a liar and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft, soapy grafter, and if I don't I am a grump. Yes, certainly this is a snap." And he looks over $10,000 worth of accounts, all good, and wonders how he can raise $35 to pay a sight draft due tomorrow.—Exchange.

TELL THEM ABOUT THE FAIRIES.

Not long ago we watched a group of children at an entertainment given by a magician, and were convinced that the mind of a child is the most receptive and sensitive thing in the world. The magician had a number of children grouped about the stage and we noticed the marked difference in the little ones. Some were shy and fainthearted. Others stepped forth eagerly and did what he bade them in a frank and unafraid manner. Those timid ones, through improper training, had had fear instilled into their little hearts. How we wish that we could impress parents with the fact that it is a crime to teach children to be afraid of anything in this big, beautiful world, that God has made. Caution and carefulness may be imparted without filling the child mind with horror.

Imagination is one of the most powerful factors of the child mind. It is just as easy to appeal to that imagination with thoughts that develop courage and self-reliance as those that create pictures of fear. Don't tell the little ones that the goblins or the bogie man will get them if they don't behave. Tell them of the good fairies who are always ready to attend on them, such as Truth, Cheerfulness, Kindness and Obedience. Explain to them that when they are untruthful, or cross, or unkind, these good fairies go away from them in sadness and will not return to help them until they have repented of their naughtiness.

The hearts and minds of the little ones are open to their quest for light. They want to believe and trust in something. Why not teach them to find that trust on something that is beautiful and good?

And, from now until Christmas you can secure wonderful obediences by reminding that little fairy in your home that Santa Claus remembers only the good little girls and boys on Christmas Eve.—The Parado.

Pender Island News Items

(Review Correspondent.)

PENDER ISLAND, Nov. 7.—(Editorial) did not pass unnoticed, though the goblins did very little mischief, so far as is known. A most enjoyable party was given at "Valley Farm" by Miss Ruth Menzies, assisted by her sister, Mrs. W. B. Johnston. The guests were ushered in by a ghost in attendance at the door under the dim lights of two large Jack-o'-Lanterns. The living room was prettily decorated with autumn leaves, the windows also being screened with yellow crepe paper bearing the usual black cats. Various Halloween games and contests were indulged in, most of them being a bit unusual and amusing. One in particular was the auction of the ghosts. The ladies were each in turn dressed as ghosts in another room, then taken into the living room, seated on a stool, and auctioned off to the men, who were given bags of peanuts with which to purchase their partners. Mr. Fry proved a very capable auctioneer, and, needless to say, a few surprises were enjoyed when the sheets were removed from the ladies' faces. Toward the close of the evening delicious refreshments, appropriate of the occasion, were served and much enjoyed. Music, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought a very happy event to a close. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Garratt, Miss Jean Brackett, Mr. Alex. Brackett, Mrs. P. Stebbings, Mr. and Mrs. Fry, Rev. and Mrs. MacMillan and Myrtle, Mr. and Mrs. A. HOGS

Calgary prices opened this week at $8.50 on a few head. Wednesday's sales were at $9 as the price for thick smooth. Up to this morning there had not been one hog graded as select bacon. With $9 as basic price grades were sold: Thick smooth, $9; shop hogs, $8; heavies, $8; extra heavies, $7; lights, $8; sows, $6@7.

SHEEP

Calgary prices unchanged, with lambs from $10 down wethers, $7.50 down, and ewes $6 down.

GRAIN

Prices on all grains have been fairly good during the week, and European buyers are dipping into the market once in a while. The question of getting the grain to seaboard from the head of the lakes is the troublesome problem now. Threshing weather in Alberta and other western provinces has been splendid, and everything is practically cleaned up.

PRODUCE

Butterfat—Creameries have dropped prices 2c during this week; specials now 38c; No. 4, 33c; No. 2, 30c; off grade, 25c. Creamery butter—Carlots, basis specials, 34½¢@35¢; No. 1 cartons, 41c; No. 2, 36c. Dairy butter—Fancy table, 30¢@34¢, demand good. No. 1, 21¢@25¢; off grades not in demand. Eggs—Very few specials or extras in cases moving now; buying on basis, 30¢@32¢ extras; No. 1, 25¢@26¢; No. 2, 19¢@20¢; cracks, 12¢@15¢. Poultry prices steady; dealers buying No. 1 and No. 2 grades now, with prices: Fowl, 8¢@10¢; chicken, 10¢@12¢; turkeys, 16¢@18¢; ducks and geese, 8¢@12¢. Not much demand for dressed shipments yet. Dealers suggest Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 best time to market turkeys. Potatoes—Calgary dealers offered much more than they can handle at $16@18¢; only local demand to supply, with some to districts in province where crop short.

HAY

No general demand up to present; any business movement would be seriously handicapped by car shortage. Upland prices, country points to farmers, $10.50@17; green feed, baled, $10@11; loose, $8; timothy offered by dealers in southern districts at $24.

FURS

Fall rats are quoted 60¢@90¢, with offerings of winter skins worth $1@1.25; coyote skins, $5@10; weasel, 25¢@50¢; prospects of market not too rosy.

HIDES

Prices unchanged, with green salted butchers at 9¢; kip skins, 9¢@10¢; calf, 10¢@12¢.

Rude Rural Rhymes

A POEM OF PANTS AND PATCHES

I've won success beyond my scheming and wealth beyond my wildest dreaming. Whatever fate may later chance, I now have three whole pairs of pants. That is, I fear, two pairs too many, since some good brothers have not any. I do not hesitate to say that I have often seen the day, nay I have known a year or more when one whole pair was all my store. When long o'er hill and plain I'd chased them, and no new trousers had replaced them, those pants, by Hannah's skillful art, were patched upon their wildest part. I wore that patch and sat upon it when writing many a rhyme and sonnet. Those early rhymes are still unmatched by later ones that I have hatched, o'en since I've worked with pants unpatched. O every morning just at dawn before I put those britches on, my wife looked over them to see if they were safe and sane for me. And later, ere to bed I went, at her command I often bent, to see if I had sprung a rent. And if she saw as I was going, a strip of D. V. D. was showing, I'd yank them off right then and there, and shiver in the chilly air, the while she made a quick repair. Unless I work my rusty pen those pantless times may come again; but, for the present, I rejoice and sing with loud melodious voice, enjoy my trousers while I've got them, before hard wear and weather rot them.

—BOB ADAMS.

THE ECHOS IN OUR HEARTS

(By Helen Kirk)

She stood there on the bridge, alluring in her fluffy white summer frock. Laughter shook her and an amused look of toleration flitted across her face.

"One would think you were acting, Raymond; really this is too good."

"Perhaps this is 'too good' for you Marie, but what about me. Where do I come in? I am hungry for you. You remember that promise you gave me three years back when we were at College?"

"Merely a boy and girl affair, Raymond. You know that. I have told you so often, and I returned the last gift you sent me to show you that I meant what I said."

"You, young beauty. You would put me off would you? Well, I am going to have my say now, do you hear, Marie? You are going to be my wife and no Dick Stewart is coming between us either. Don't you dare say you love him, his wealth and his cars, or I will kill you. If I can't have you no one can."

Marie straightened. "Since when have you had the privilege of choosing my friends?" she asked.

"For ever and ever I want the right, Marie, and I mean to have it. Say that you love me just once, Marie, and let me—"

"You beast!" So this is the way you hope to win my affections? Love you!" She laughed aloud, harsh sound coming between her lips. "I hate you!"

Raymond was after her, quick as lightning. "No you don't, Marie. You are mine, all mine. Won't you let me, just once—"

Marie, terror in her eyes, stepped out of his reach—backwards off the narrow bridge. Her dress caught on a protruding board and instead of falling and being dashed to dath on the rocks below, she hung there wavering between life and death.

So God had been kind to her and given her one more chance to live.

"You beast!" she said, her breath coming in short gasps. "You dare to threaten me like this!"

"No threat about it, my dear," said Raymond Marco. "Merely a choice between life and death."

Marie Norton looked down from her dizzy height of three hundred feet into the black chasm below. The rapids bounded over the rocks, sending a pearl-like spray high into the air.

"Do you mean to say, Raymond, that you refuse to help me unless I promise to marry you?"

"Just that," he replied.

Marie was frantic, but she tried to keep an outward calm. Every moment might be her last; self preservation was her first thought, but her second thought made her sick with fear of what her life would be if she married Raymond, and what her life wouldn't be if he didn't help her. Marie accepted.

His eyes held the same look as that which was in the eyes of one of the great Roman conquerors who had brought to his feet so-called "unconquerable" tribe. Inch by inch Raymond edged his way out to Marie. He was sick with fear because at heart he was a coward. Just two feet farther and what a prize he had gained; for years now he had hoped and schemed, when fair means were of no avail he used foul; but until now she had steadily refused him; now fate had played into his hands. He was a fool not to have trusted to fate long ago; instead of going through hell for the fear of losing her all those years.

The board cracked. He slipped, but with a great effort he drew himself back onto the bridge again. He hoped God would be good to him just this once; he did not believe in God, but still anything to get him out of this, and help him to get Marie once into his hands—then leave it to him, she wouldn't get away again.

Inch by inch he drew nearer to Marie; he was not more than six inches away from her now; his hands were clammy, his face was deathly pale. Three more inches to go; now two; now one. He was there and Marie was his prize (not fairly won, but what did that matter?) He reached forward and took Marie by her shoulders, she would have been his, but—he slipped.

For perhaps ten seconds they hung there, then without a sound they fell into the chasm below.

Silence reigned supreme.

The curtain was lowered and then a mighty applause arose. Once more the favorites, Marie Norton and the famous Raymond Marco had "made a hit" with the theatre-going public. It had been a tense moment in the audience when Raymond and Marie had hung over the edge of the bridge and then fallen.

A sentimental old bachelor was seen to rub his eyes suspiciously and perhaps he wished for his youth again. Two old maids turned scornful faces to the public, but perhaps deep down in their hearts they wished that they had been Marie to have been loved by a Marco.

Wide-eyed girls sitting beside their adoring escorts gasped, but said comfortingly to themselves that after all it was only a story—you see, they were very, very young.

Young boys with their best girls thrilled to it and looked perhaps a little longer than usual at the trusting little Marie's as their idols, and perhaps they held their Marie's hand just a little bit longer than necessary when saying good-night.

Nothing is acted on the stage that does not find an echo in the hearts of each and everyone of us, no matter how old or how young we may be.

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good results. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."
